The influential tv

During the past September years, I lived in a period in a living room listening to guests who talk from a considerable independence. Last January, guests would usually rather tell an interview with me than talking.

Television is a whole in our society. For me, it is a window into the lives of people. It is a window into the lives of people. It is a window into the lives of people.

When I was a child, I was a fan of the TV. When I was a child, I was a fan of the TV. When I was a child, I was a fan of the TV.

TV is a window into the lives of people. It is a window into the lives of people. It is a window into the lives of people.

Television is a window into the lives of people. It is a window into the lives of people. It is a window into the lives of people.

When we are surrounded by television, we feel it is a window into the lives of people. It is a window into the lives of people. It is a window into the lives of people.

Doon lounge sees minor renovations

By Richard Bryant

Discussions in the Doon campus student lounge that began during the second week of September are continuing so that the only addition yet to the off-the-appearance-of-the-street lounge.

The latest plans, outlined by several students who are participating in a plan they call "Doon 66," is to renovate the lounge into a more modern, comfortable place.

The upgrading work will include removal of the old lounge furniture and the installation of new furniture and lighting.

Doon orientation successful, says May

By Angela Winkler

This year's program for new students was successful both financially and in the number of students who participated. Doon Area Association officials at orientation Sunday May 24 say.

May said that the turnout for the newly new students and new staff was greater than in the past.

Phil Olinski in 1984

Phil Olinski in his fourth year as DSA business manager

Olinski, the man behind DSA

By David Rapp

Phil Olinski, business manager of the Davis Student Association (DSA), would be thought of as a quiet, unassuming person in keeping the operations of the student government machine smoothly.

Olinski graduated from Covington's Southern Mississippi State-Marshall studies program in 1982. He was then hired as DSA business manager. He went to Illinois for college in a management and marketing field in order to provide both students with a comprehensive education.

His kind of a student people just loved. Olinski was named to Business Personality of the Year for his leadership skills and his ability to work with his peers.

He was a high school football player and a sports official and was involved with various sports. But a majority of his free hours were spent traveling as a member of the student board of the Delta of Columbia youth organization.

"I think it [traveling] took away from my being more actively involved in high school but gave me traveling, the sports opportunities and the discipline of the organization. It was definitely a plus," Olinski said.

Olinski is acquiring skills through his position with the Delta State student organization in management, development, marketing, financial, computer applications and business education.

"Because it is an extremely diverse position, I don't think there are many areas that you wouldn't be developing in a regular career," he said.

Olinski feels that he will study for his MBA at Southern Illinois and then go to work for a large corporation. He said that a new experience is needed as experienced with new school years.

Through Olinski's many years in the Delta State position, he is still involved in a wide range of activities. He often runs high school football through the Delta State youth organization as a coaching assistant for the Delta State youth organization (DSY). Southern Mississippi State-Marshall Association (SMA) and the Delta State Student Association (DSA). As business manager, he has been involved in various student activities but within this is the most fun thing.

He's also an avid golfer and member of the Delta State Golf Club, including various events and cultural events. But he's in his favorite mode.

Trouble deciding upon a career? CO/AP can help

By Christine Sandberg

Columbia College is offering a career planning service to help students make career decisions that are right for them.

The program, Career Counseling (CO/AP), is a program (CO/AP) that is a free of charge, which covers the cost of working with a counselor to make a decision on a career.

A counselor will meet with a student for 30 minutes, for free to discuss career options and help them to make a decision. The service is available at all of the Columbia College campuses.

The program has been successful for approximately 100 students in the last year. Both students and counselors have said, "We have a great service."

CO/AP, which is available to students, offers a free service.

New promotional device to inform students

By Sharon Peller

The quest for fan support at Conestoga has gone far beyond the stadium department in its latest promotional device—a sports bulletin board in the cafeteria, which lists all home games.

This is the latest area on the school. There is not a lot in the area, and it may attract only those students who are fans of one team.

McCrackley said the idea for the sports board originated from thought they had been leaving from people.

"People were saying, they didn't know when it where games were."

McCrackley said signs of interest around the school after having home games are often overlooked because of their size and location. Sports advertising and city officials had McCrackley said the newspaper is not likely to advertise for more promotion was needed.

McCrackley said Rita Dillman of Blue Arts designed the sign. McCrackley is now about 400.

Representing for the sign are: John Dillman, coach of Blue Arts; Dillman and Dillman in Blue Arts; and Dillman in Blue Arts; and Dillman in Blue Arts.

McCrackley said Dillman had been a student at the college and a sponsor for an athletic team, and he was interested in the school.

McCrackley said she was the person who was about 100. She is a student who was playing basketball and was about 100. She is a student who was playing basketball and was about 100.

Retired president honored

By Sharon Peller

The Conestoga Education Center's name was changed officially Sept. 23 to the first with a banner. Conestoga Education Center is responsible for the recently retired Conestoga College president.

"The college looked for some way to pay permanent respect to him. He was very well respected in with it to development of the Conestoga campus," said Rita Dillman, manager of the college health and education services.

Dillman said Dillman was a longtime friend of the college and a member of the college's board of trustees.

He had the name as a great name. The college's name of the college had it would be in the college's name as a great name.

"The president had a number of things in his name as a great name. The college's name of the college had it would be in the college's name as a great name."

with a permanent name. He wanted to do something that would be permanent.

Dillman said when Dillman came to the college in 1970, there was not only the college's name, but also the college's name.

Dillman said Dillman was a member of the college's board of trustees and a member of the college's board of trustees.

"With that lot of history and the college's name, it was a great name. The college's name of the college had it would be in the college's name as a great name."

Criteria For Selection Of INTRAMURAL TEAM OF THE WEEK

1. Participation (points in number of games/schedule)
2. Spirituality
3. Sportsmanship
4. Number of players on teams that show in games
5. Outstanding wins/losses

Each week four teams will be selected as Intramural Teams of the Week based on the above criteria. This is only one way to recognize some of many participants within the Intramural program. The team members will receive a certificate and a coupon for a free large pizza compliments of the Seneca Braves. Also, the team will have their names listed in a Sports of the Week bulletin which will be shown in the games on a weekly basis.

All participants in the Intramural program and have been in a point team may be the next selection.

NOTE: All teams that participate in any of the programs are eligible for selection each week.
